THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS AND HUMAN SCIENCES BUILDING
LOCATED AT 200 STANGER STREET
FOR ANDREW OLIVER AND FANNIE VAUGHN OLIVER

WHEREAS, the College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences building located on the Blacksburg campus of Virginia Tech at 200 Stanger Street was built in 1900; and

WHEREAS, Andrew Oliver, Sr. was the first African-American employee of record of Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, now known as Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University; and

WHEREAS, Andrew Oliver married Fannie Vaughn on September 1, 1859, both of whom had local roots that long pre-dated Virginia Tech and were among the enslaved people of this era and locality; and

WHEREAS, the Olivers represent a population connected with Virginia Tech since its founding but seldom acknowledged in histories of the institution – African-Americans who helped build and maintain the campus from its earliest days; and

WHEREAS, the historical connections between the enslaved populations of Montgomery County and the origins of Virginia Tech were embodied in African-Americans, such as Andrew Oliver and Fannie Vaughn Oliver, who began their lives as slaves and became part of the university community; and

WHEREAS, it would be a most appropriate and fitting tribute to name the plaza located at 200 Stanger Street for Andrew Oliver and Fannie Vaughn Oliver, as the geographical space now occupied by the College of Liberal Arts and Human Sciences and the Upper Quad occupied by the Corps of Cadets were adjacent to the Blacksburg neighborhood called New Town, which between 1880 and 1960 was home to many of the African-American men and women who worked at the university;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that in acknowledgement of the personal journey and contributions of time, service, and influence of Andrew Oliver and Fannie Vaughn Oliver to the history of the university, and by extension honoring the local African-American community whose members often played significant support roles rarely recognized by the institution, the plaza located at 200 Stanger Street will henceforth be known as Vaughn-Oliver Plaza.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the above resolution naming the Vaughn-Oliver Plaza for Andrew Oliver and Fannie Vaughn Oliver located at 200 Stanger Street, be approved.
